(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The west coast was shocked today by what appeared to be the first aerial bombing of the U. S. mainland, carried out by a small seaplane possibly launched from a Japanese submarine.

An unidentified submarine later was attacked by a U. S. Army patrol plane with unknown results.

The western defense command announced that the seaplane flew over the Oregon coast Sept. 9 and apparently dropped an incendiary bomb in a forest on Mt. Emily nine miles northeast of Brookings, Ore., near the California border and only a few miles from the Pacific coast.

In the area of the small crater formed by the dropping bomb, which bore Japanese markings, a fire later was discovered but was quickly extinguished by U. S. forestry patrols. Observers suggested the only likely objective of the supposed hit-and-run raid was to start a forest fire.

Causes Surprise
Although military and naval officials repeatedly had warned that enemy air raids must be expected on the west coast, announcement that the first one apparently now actually had taken place caused widespread surprise.

Some hours after the mysterious plane, which was without identification marks, had been observed by the forestry patrols, a U. S. Army patrol plane sighted and attacked an unidentified submarine 30 miles off the Oregon coast, according to the official communique. The results of the attack on the U-boat were "unobserved," the announcement stated.

RELIEF SHIPS ON WAY ABROAD

Nat. C. Wilson, Eastern Area Manager of the American Red Cross told an interested audience, composed of members of the Red Cross Board and invited guests at a dinner in the Field Club, Monday evening, of the work going on in Europe, Russia, and China, administering relief to the stricken population of these countries.

Mr. Wilson, who assisted in the distribution of food and clothing in Spain, China, and Russia, told how this work was carried out, and of the fact that relief is now being distributed by the Red Cross, wherever it is possible to secure safe conduct of ships to the stricken areas. At the present time, he stated, a shipload of powdered milk is on its way to France for distribution in the unoccupied zone.

No relief is sent into the stricken areas without someone accompanying it from the Red Cross, who checks up on the distribution to see that it reaches the source that it is intended for. So far, there have been no instances of where there has been any diversion to other sources.

Where it is impossible to get into occupied territory, the Swedish and Swiss Red Cross has been taking care of the interests of the American Red Cross.

Two Million Tons Of Scrap Is State Aim

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—A campaign to raise more than 20,000,000 tons of scrap metal opened today in Pennsylvania.

According to Colley S. Baker, executive secretary of the state salvage committee, the drive will last two weeks and is designed to make up Pennsylvania's quota of 3,000,000 tons, only one-fourth of which has already been collected. The metal, it was explained, will be needed to keep steel mills of the state in operation during the winter.

Urging the 67 county and 880 local committees to "extend their best efforts to bring in every available pound of scrap," Warren R. Roberts, state salvage chairman, pointed out that Pennsylvania's quota is the largest for any state of the nation. The campaign will be followed by a school salvage drive in October.

The Steagall measure directs that ceilings on farm commodities be set at parity (the 1909-1914 purchasing power of the farmer's dollar) or the highest market price this year, whichever is higher. The bill also proposes a new definition of parity in which labor costs of the farmer would be included.

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—America has established "a real second front" against the Japanese in the southwest Pacific, Rear-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, navy chief of ordnance, said today, and emphasized that the United States now holds the balance of naval and military striking power in the western Pacific area.

This statement was made by Blandy to reporters at a press conference called by the Secretary of Navy Frank Knox following the admiral's return from a 26,000 mile tour of U. S. Pacific outposts.

Blandy was asked whether he believed that American forces which seized the Solomon Islands from the Japs could hold their gains against anything the Nipponese might be able to throw against them.

"I don't think we can do it by merely holding," Blandy answered. "We have to keep pushing. The best defense is offense."

The admiral was then asked if he (Continued On Page Seven)

Singer's vivid account of the aerial attack, during which Jap Zero planes were fought off without loss to the Americans, did not identify the carrier. Allied Bombers Lash At Jap Supply Lines

By LEE VAN ATTA
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, in Australia, Sept. 15.—For the second successive day Allied bombers lashed out at Japanese supply lines to their island bases surrounding New Guinea, bombing and machine gunning two enemy supply ships in the Tenimber Islands, a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

The enemy vessels were sighted at Saumlaki, a small island on the eastern fringe of the Tenimber group which lies east of Timor and due south of the western end of New Guinea.

Results of the attacks were not observed. Decks of the two cargo vessels were machine-gunned after the bombers had dropped their loads.

Yesterday two Japanese supply ships were caught by Allied bombers off Soloe Island on the western edge of the Tenimber group, and one of the vessels was left in a sinking condition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A long senate battle over the new tax bill appeared certain today as it fell $2,000,000,000 short of treasury demands and it was disclosed that some of the most important provisions were approved by the senate finance committee by a one or two vote margin.

While Sen. George (D) Ga. chairman of the finance committee, said that no official estimate has been made of the yield of the virtually completed bill, members said it would take about $8,500,000,000 from taxpayers in one year but with a post-war rebate which would cut the net yield to about $6,700,000,000.

MOSCOW, Sept. 15.—German attacks at Stalingrad have now reached a "paroxysm of fury," front-line observers reported today as the Soviet high command announced repulse of numerous Nazi assaults west and southwest of the city.

Despite the heightened tempo of the enemy onslaughts, the Russian lines are still holding, it was said.

The situation is growing tenser by the hour despite stern Soviet resistance as the Germans threw in great new masses of men and tanks while bombing the city without cessation from the air.

Dispatches from Stalingrad said that Nazi planes are coming over in waves of as many as 500 at a time, blasting away at Russian communications and vital defense points.

To Bring 1500 More From Far East

Negotiations Are Near Completion

U. S. Hopes To Bring These Nationals Home Before Christmas

JAPANESE WILL GO IN EXCHANGE

By KINGSBURY SMITH
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Responsible sources in Washington today said the arrangements have been virtually completed for another boatload of approximately 1,500 Americans to be brought home from Japanese-controlled territory in the Far East.

It is hoped that this group of Americans, including many women and children, will be home well in time for Christmas.

The state department also is negotiating with Japan through the Swiss government for the repatriation of several thousand more American nationals who are interned in China, the Philippines, and other Japanese-occupied areas.

Safe conduct is now being arranged for the vessels which will carry out the next exchange of nationals between the United States and Japan.

When arrangements have been completed a Japanese vessel will bring the 1,500 Americans to the Portuguese port of Lourenco Marques on the East African coast.

A vessel which has been chartered by the American government will carry Japanese nationals from this country to Lourenco Marques, where the actual exchange will take place. The American-chartered vessel also will carry several thousand tons of food for American prisoners of war and internees held by the Japanese. Japan has agreed to distribute this food to the Americans under the supervision of the International Red Cross.

The task of arranging for the exchange of nationals has proved a complicated one, but American officials have persevered, and it is now possible that at least four more boatloads of Americans will be brought home.

The first group of American nationals, including diplomatic representatives, to be brought home under the exchange arrangements arrived in New York aboard the chartered Swedish steamer Gripsholm on August 25th. After leaving Lourenco Marques, they came across the south Atlantic and stopped at Rio de Janeiro enroute to New York. The second exchange group probably will follow the same route.

miles from the main Allied base at Port Moresby, was targeted by increased patrol activity but the enemy has scored no new advances, the communiqué stated.

Allied planes continued to bomb and strafe the enemy positions in low-level attacks.

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commanding ground forces in this area under Gen. MacArthur, returned yesterday from an inspection tour of the New Guinea battle fronts. It was disclosed today.

These extend from the area around Port Moresby to the enemy bases at Lae and Salamaua on the opposite shore of the Papuan tip, and include the Allied positions on Milne Bay where a Japanese landing force was defeated and expelled from the island except for a small force that fled into the jungles.

The London News Chronicle's Australian correspondent reported in a dispatch today that the Japanese made repeated attempts to capture the airfield at Milne Bay. American ground service forces, throwing their tools and seized machine guns and rifles to help drive off the foe, the dispatch said. The Japanese suffered heavy losses in these unsuccessful assaults, it was reported.

Allied air supremacy was claimed today by the Australian radio which declared "we are now on top in both men and machines."

Sixty of 400 Japanese fighters and bombers that participated in various raids on Port Darwin were certainly destroyed, an additional 20 probably destroyed and 15 others so badly damaged that it is doubtful they got back to their bases, the announcement stated.

The Allied air force officer commanding in the area praised the record of his men, declaring:

"Your plane losses have been few and most of the men in the lost planes have been saved. We are on top now both with men and machines. We look to the people at home to keep giving us supplies and machines."

While in 1940, the vote in the Maine congressional election was divided approximately 65 per cent for the Republicans and 35 per cent for the Democrats, it appeared that the margin in this year's election would be around 70-30.

In the 1940 presidential election, Wendell Wilkie received 51 per cent of the Maine vote and President Roosevelt 49 per cent.

In Connecticut, meanwhile, a Republican district convention yesterday nominated Clare Boothe Luce, author-playright, by a landslide vote of 84 to 2 on the first ballot for representative in congress from the fourth district.

Except for the Rhode Island conventions, Sept. 28 and 29, today's primaries conclude nominations for all states.

In Massachusetts, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R) is opposed by Courtenay Crocker, 61-year-old Boston attorney. The Democratic senator nomination is being sought by four candidates, including Rep. Joseph E. Casey.

Price ceilings have been a great factor in stopping frantic accumulation of inventories, according to the Department of Commerce.

Only enough food calories are being supplied in occupied Europe to keep the people from dying, about 10 per cent of the normal food needs being distributed, he stated.

WILSON TELLS OF HIS WORK IN RED CROSS FIELD

sent to prisoners of war. Men who are prisoners of the Germans are receiving such packages at the present time, but it is impossible to reach the Americans who are prisoners of the Japs, because Japan will not guarantee safe conduct of ships into the occupied territory, for fear they may give away the location of the mine fields the Japs have prepared to keep away invading forces from the coast.

At the present time, Mr. Wilson stated, a ship is loaded and waiting in the harbor for these prisoners as soon as it is possible to make arrangements. It is hoped to do this through a landing at Portuguese possessions and the transfer of the packages to a Japanese ship, the same as took place in the transfer of diplomatic prisoners recently.

At the present time, relief to Russia has only been given with medical supplies, four million dollars worth having been sent them. No request has been made for anything else.

Mr. Wilson spiked the rumor that a vast amount of Red Cross supplies have been lost in transit through the sinking of ships. The loss has been remarkably light, Mr. Wilson stated, supplies being widely distributed on convoy ships, assuring that most of it gets through.

Many interesting sidelights were told by Mr. Wilson. He spoke of the black bread which is issued to the French people, a sample of which was analyzed by chemists at the instance of the Red Cross. It was found to contain about 25 per cent wheat, and the rest of filler substances, such as beans, and even wood cellulose. One sample contained about 10 per cent of something it was impossible to identify, he stated.

Only enough food calories are being supplied in occupied Europe to keep the people from dying, about 10 per cent of the normal food needs being distributed, he stated.

The dinner, at which Mr. Wilson and the board members were guests was given by Miss Margaret F. Bodenstein, executive director, and Miss Thyrta Fulton, Home Service secretary, who worked with Mr. Wilson in the Ohio and Mississippi valley flood several years ago.

small army force to the Libyan supply base and covered the landings while a synchronized air attack blasted the enemy positions.

Naval Force Aids
Meantime another light naval force stood offshore and bombarded Axis positions around Daba, close behind the battleship in Egypt, inflicting considerable loss without damage or casualties.

"Light naval forces with a small army force carried out a seaborne raid on Tobruk," said the admiralty communiqué.

The attack was carried out the night of September 13-14 in conjunction with an air attack on a considerable scale.

"Our force landed in the face of strong opposition and inflicted damage and casualties on the enemy before withdrawing."

"The withdrawal was not carried out without losses which, in view of the strength of the defenses, were to be expected."

"Another light naval force successfully bombarded enemy lines of communication in the Daba area. This force returned to harbor safely, suffering neither damage nor casualties."

Hit-and-Run Raid

The naval correspondent of the Daily Express, commenting on Axis claims that an invasion attempt had been "frustrated," pointed out that the small size of the British force made it apparent that it was nothing more than a hit-and-run raid for military reconnaissance and demolition of harbor installations.

There was no confirmation of enemy claims that parachute troops had been used.

Berlin radio reports of the raid, heard in London, claimed that two British ships had been hit and set afire, six planes shot down and a number of prisoners taken.

The Rome account of the raid said six British warships, including cruisers and destroyers, made up the attacking force at Tobruk, but made no attempt to describe the types of vessels claimed to have been damaged.

of the German navy were berthed there. But for the past year the Nazis have moved their bigger vessels to safer havens to the east and in Norway.

The official German news agency DNB admitted that British planes attacked a "northern harbor" during the night, causing damage among buildings and starting fires. Four raiders were shot down, according to the German claim.

The previous night a force of several hundred RAF bombers blasted Bremen for the 100th time.

Dieppe Raid Cost Canadians 3,350

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 15.—In the devastating commando raid on Dieppe, France, on August 19, a total of 3,350 Canadians were killed, wounded or are missing, Adjutant General H. F. Letson disclosed today.

The Canadians comprised the major portion of the commando party, which also included American Ranger forces and British troops, that wrought devastation at Dieppe in the surprise early morning attack by land while Allied bombers dropped destruction from the skies.

NAZIS INCREASE TEMPO OF ATTACK UPON STALINGRAD

Sarepta, Elkhay, or Beketova, all of which straddle the main lines into Stalingrad from the South.

The latest communiqué disclosed that the Marshal Fedor von Bock have failed to register a gain in the last two days against the stalwart Russian defenses girding the Volga river metropol.

"Exchange Telegraph, in a dispatch from Stockholm, quoted a German 'Spokesman' at Berlin as claiming that the 'administrative center' of Stalingrad has been reached. The dispatch said the Germans made an advance along the Moscow-Stalingrad railroad but that the 'final phase' of taking the city 'may take many days.' The Germans were said to be 'actively preparing for winter on the Russian front.'"

Swarms of Nazi planes droned over the Stalingrad front after hour in non-stop attacks but the Red Army stood firm under this aerial lashing.

Planes Bomb Continuously
The enemy planes came over the imperiled city in droves hour after hour to rake and plaster the city and its defenses in an apparent effort to try and soften the stubborn Soviet troops.

The overwhelming German aerial superiority is accounting for every advance at Stalingrad, military observers declared.

"Stalingrad is being systematically bombed square by square and the battle for the city is rapidly nearing a climax, a Reuters (British) News agency correspondent at Moscow reported.

"The correspondent reported that an 'exchange situation' had arisen south of Stalingrad where German shock troops penetrated a tactically important village and are holding out on the western outskirts despite the most bitter fighting."

Russian troops have repulsed "several" enemy attacks west and south of Stalingrad and the Soviet lines are holding, the high command announced in its noon communiqué.

Reinforcements Arrive

The enemy ring of steel west, southwest and northwest of the city, is daily receiving reinforcements of reserves, materiel and tanks, it was reported. In the opinion of foreign military observers in Moscow, these replacements will not materially affect the outcome of the battle if the Red Army receives new air support.

The Russian ground forces, although outnumbered, can hold the Germans if given sufficient backing by planes, it was revealed.

The Nazis appeared to be pushing hard from the west for the communiqué described the number of enemy attacks there as "several."

The attacks southwest of Stalingrad were "repelled," the communiqué said.

Continued Russian successes on the central (Moscow) front were reported when Red Army troops drove the enemy from a fortified point.

Describing the fighting in these sectors, the communiqué said:

"West of Stalingrad, we fought defensive battles, beating off several attacks."

"Southwest of Stalingrad, we repelled attacks."

"On the Central front, the enemy was dislodged from a fortified point."

Press Caucasus Drive

The Germans were pressing their stepped-up drive in the Moxdok sector of the central Caucasus, with the rich Grozny oil fields as their objective.

Tanks were brought into action by the Germans and it appeared the enemy succeeded in making an advance. The communiqué said

HERSHEY AUXILIARY REVIEWS ITS HISTORY

Hershey auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church held its first meeting of the season in the church Monday evening, preceded by a tureen dinner.

Theme of worship for the year is "Scripture Promises," and for worship services Miss May Martin discussed "Promises of Spiritual Blessings in This Life."

Program consisted of "Pageant of Past Presidents" and "History of Hershey Auxiliary," under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Fankhauser. Organized in 1908 by Mrs. Scott Hershey, wife of the pastor who served the church from 1908-1912, the auxiliary has been successful in many projects, three associate, and four honorary.

In recalling past events, it was very evident that the growth of the auxiliary has been not only in numbers but many worthwhile projects have been successful in a material way while the spiritual value to the individual, the church, and the community cannot be evaluated.

Past presidents who were present and contributed to recalling incidents in the history of their administrations were the first president, Mrs. Joan Elliott, Mrs. S. W. Perry, Mrs. H. E. Golder, Mrs. William Atkinson, Mrs. David Ritchie, Mrs. Ira Ramsey, Mrs. A. B. Fankhauser, Mrs. James Rhodes.

Fitting remarks were made by the present president, Mrs. William Margraf, urging members during this time of strife to "lift up thine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh our help."

Other past presidents unable to attend were Mrs. Robert Magill, Mrs. Harry McKee, Jr., Mrs. William Wheeler, and Mrs. L. B. Round.

After the business meeting, members adjourned to meet October 5.

Guests present were Mrs. Hugh Barnard, of Rome, N. Y., Mrs. Gilchrist, and Mrs. Margaret Brooks. Hostesses were Mrs. Ed White, Mrs. Russell Melvin, Mrs. G. W. Thomas, Mrs. Homer Gardner, Mrs. P. H. Bridenbaugh, Mrs. M. A. Brown, Mrs. D. Cleland, Mrs. Carl Devlin, Mrs. J. A. McNeill, Mrs. R. P. Mackey, and Mrs. John Foster.

"At Last," from the film, "Orchestra Wives," has a slow, smooth rhythm. Hear it and relax. By the way—Glenn Miller acts in this picture soon to be shown at the Victor Theatre. Included, during the picture, is "Kalamazoo," "Serenade in Blue," "This Sabotage," Miller also plays in its entirety, "Bugle Call Rag," an old Bluebird recording.

Music Is Essential.

"There Will Never Be Another You" by Teddy Powell is for your dreaming mood again.

"Strip Polka" is direct contrast to above two tunes as sung by the King Sisters—Terrific!

Several old records featuring Boogie Woogie style are: Erskine Hawkins' "Knock Me a Kiss," "Bicycle Bounce," "So Long Shorty."

"Little Red Riding Hood," "Sleepy Beauty" and "Cinderella" are a set of three records in illustrated container—dramatized fairy tales with musical background.

The National Symphony again comes to the top with "Don Juan," a tone poem for orchestra by Richard Strauss. It is vivid, energetic and consistently good.

U. S. SOLDIERS 'ROUND THE WORLD

ABOUT 600,000 United States troops are now serving overseas, according to Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson. This is a far greater achievement than might at first be realized. These fighting men have been transported long distances, under the most difficult circumstances.

They have been sent to Australia, India, China; to the Middle East; to Alaska and Hawaii. Recent news described the arrival of American soldiers at Brazzaville in French Equatorial Africa; of United States Army troops and nurses at Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo. American tankmen and fliers are fighting with the British in Egypt.

We have no doubt that Mr. Patterson's assertion that our men will be sent in ever increasing numbers will be borne out. But if there is approval of the accomplishments, there remains regret that conditions make it necessary to spread our troops out far and wide. It is to be wished that we could have concentrated even half a million men at one vital point.

But this is no wishing war. The problems to be met are not of our choice. We may hope that the time will come, and come soon, when really large American forces can be marshalled in areas where they can hit, and hit hard, as the heart of Axis power, instead of around the edges.

WAR "PROFITS"

Charges of unconscionable profiteering by war industries are not sustained by many corporate statements covering the first six months of this year. Operations were at peak levels in terms of dollar value of output and with few exceptions gross earnings were up, but these are deceiving as related to net earnings.

Two current reports—one by the National Industrial Conference Board's division of industrial economics and the other by the National City Bank of New York are enlightening on this point. According to the first, 333 industrial corporations, after permitted reserves including those for taxes, earned $585,647,000, or 30 per cent less than in the first six months of 1941.

To the question whether this fairly reflects profits in war production as distinguished from consumer production the National City Bank report may give the answer. That bank's study was restricted to 125 of the largest arms contractors. Instead of 30 per cent, their earnings fell 36 per cent.

For the meager profits as compared with a year ago, taxes, of course, are mainly responsible, but increased labor and material costs are no small factor. Instances of unconscionable profits have been uncovered and more will be undoubtedly, but the large number will probably be found in the classification of individuals. And after they pay the new income taxes, what they have left will be little more than birdseed.

Railroad and coal mining companies are almost alone in showing somewhat increased earnings after having been in financial straits for years.

NAZI RAGE PROVES WORTH OF RAIDS

Increasing concern of the Nazis over large scale raids by the R. A. F. and American Flying Fortresses into Germany and occupied countries is evidenced by the bitter reaction of their spokesmen after the devastating raid against Duesseldorf.

Goebbels has made a sharp about turn. He doesn't play down these forays any more as "nuisance raids." He glumly informs all Germans they must turn out to fight fires. But a more characteristic reaction is that of a Luftwaffe colonel, who threatens Britain with unparalleled reprisals by heavy new bombers.

The threat is not an idle one. Evidently the British are preparing for it to be carried out, probably by a huge new stratosphere bomber capable of handling eight tons of bombs at a height of 40,000 feet.

Meanwhile it is a source of satisfaction to all the United Nations that the recent raids are producing such big results as to set the Nazis roaring. The best answer to the fuming Nazi broadcasters will be even greater air raids.

And that brings the problem home to the war industries of America. We must increase the output of fighting aircraft and keep them flying in greater and greater numbers to the airfields of Britain, until the onslaughts will render even Goebbels speechless.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WILL JAMES

Will James, painter and writer, who followed Remington and Russell in depicting the cow country and especially the cow business in Montana, died in California after having crowded a lot of life into his fifty years. He painted cowboys and wrote about them, and his books already are regarded as classics.

His own career was packed with adventure. He was born in a covered wagon in Judith Basin, Montana, in 1892. His mother died when he was a year old. His father, a Texas cattleman, was killed by a steer three years later. When young James was four a French-Canadian trapper adopted him and took him to Northwest Canada. James there trapped, rode herd and drew pictures of horses.

When James was thirteen his trapper friend was drowned and he started back to Montana where he continued as a cowboy. He went into rodeo, motion pictures, and in the First World War became a mounted scout in the Army.

By his paintings and writings—his writing career did not start until 1925—James amassed sufficient wealth to buy a ranch containing 12,000 acres, located near Billings, Montana.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

LET PUPILS TAKE BOOKS HOME

In ever so many places all over the United States, the child in the primary grades is not allowed to take his school books home. Sometimes it is by order of a certain teacher, sometimes by a principal or superintendent of schools on the advice of the primary supervisor. In some other cities the Board of Education passes a resolution forbidding the child, especially in the elementary grades, to take home free text books. In a few states it is by order of the Legislature.

The reasons most often given by the teacher are that the child will learn wrong reading habits at home; that he will memorize the story at home and read it from rote at school; and, absurdest of all, that he will not be interested in the story at school if he read or had it read to him at home. Then, too, some children might lose or harm the books.

Home Reading Helpful
How could we have useful public libraries if no child or adult were allowed to take a book home? Does not a public library measure its usefulness chiefly in terms of how many books are borrowed for home reading?

One very clear fact grows out of researches in reading—there is no one best way to teach reading.

As for interest, the young child likes best the story he has heard or read over and over again. In case he can read a story from mere memory without connecting the meaning with words or phrases, see how easy then it is to help him match these words and phrases with their proper meanings.

Stimulate Desire To Learn
Is not the young child's chief motive in learning to read, a wish to read to his baby brother or sister, his playmates or parents? As you know, I have often said in this column that this eagerness to read to some one at home is about the biggest power the teacher in the lower grades has to fire the child with a zeal to learn. And about the best possible way to help the poor reader in the third, fourth or fifth grade is to get him to read to some one at home.

The child from a poor home is handicapped if he denied the privilege of taking his school books home. There may be no other book in his home.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Where may I read something about allowances?

A. I have written a special bulletin on allowances, including a list of books on the subject. You may get it without cost to you by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

RAILROAD CROSSING LANE
Wherever a railroad crosses a highway at a grade there is danger. Every such crossing is at least marked by a sign before you reach it. Reading generally, Stop, Look and Listen. For railroads keep their crossing signs with bells operated by electricity, the approaching train closing the electric circuit and thereby ringing the bell, but by far the greatest number of crossings are not protected by such bells. The engineers, however, on a train approaching the crossing is required by law to blow his whistle and ring his bell, but sometimes the engineer forgets to do this. On a dark, foggy, rainy night, these crossings are very dangerous for motorists.

Shortly after midnight a motorist came to a Lehigh Valley railroad crossing. On a clear night the view would be unobstructed for two hundred feet, but as there was fog and rain the view was extremely limited. The motorist stopped dead still about fifteen feet from the nearest rail. We knew the spot well and he and his companions all looked to see if they could observe a train. None of them saw anything, and the motorist went ahead in low gear. They were almost across when they were struck by a train drifting slowly down grade hauling loaded coal cars. Because the tender was ahead of the locomotive, no headlight was showing; no whistle was blown.

The railroad claimed that they should have stepped out of the car that no train was coming, but the Superior Court of Pennsylvania awarded the motorist one thousand dollars damages, stating:

"A horse may be led up to or across the tracks, but when driving an automobile a somewhat different situation exists. The car cannot be led. If an operator must get out of a machine, he must return to his car before crossing the railroad tracks, such precaution may be more dangerous at times than carefully proceeding forward."

It is usually enough if a motorist stops at a grade crossing without getting out of the car, provided he looks with reasonable care.

Good Taste

By B. B. Bennett, Editor

It's a good story even if you have heard it. The one Walter Chrysler told of the boy who was assistant sexton of the cemetery. He was proud of his job and his one desire in life was to be sexton himself.

Eventually the sexton died and the boy moved up. He was a good grave digger, he knew how to deal with bereaved relatives, and he would have been a fine sexton except for one thing. He couldn't make out the reports. So he lost his job.

Out in the world he found outlet for his special abilities and he became a wealthy man. One day when he was applying for a $100,000 loan, his banker complimented him on the phenomenal success he had achieved in spite of meager education.

"Think what you could have done if you had gone to school," the banker exclaimed, adding, "Just what would you have been if you had had an education?"

The answer was easy—sextion of the cemetery.

NO MORE RUNNERS

We hate to confess our ignorance, but recently we were told that certain women of our acquaintance in a public institution were pointing their legs to make them look like hose, and thus avoid the expense of runners.

A secretary we had been meeting occasionally for months was one of the number. She not only painted her legs the color of hose but skillfully with an eyebrow pencil made a seam at the back.

"With all of us trying to conserve," said the secretary, "I thought it a good plan to quit buying silk hose. And one feels a lot more comfortable, too."

Stewart Discusses Money Problem After War
Economists Are Deeply Concerned About It
Predicts Trading In Units Of Production

By CHARLES P. STEWART

(Central Press Columnist)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—What's going to become of money as a result of this war?

It's a question one hears quite frequently asked of late from government economists concerned in the balancing of production on a national and international scale.

The average individual thinks of the price of something he wants as a certain sum in dollars and cents.

I believe the average professional economist has done so, too, until very recently. Anyway, we christened Director Leon Henderson's outfit, the most conspicuous of our emergency setups, as the office of price administration, upon our entry into the world conflict. The name has a kind of a monetary sound, and it's in terms of dollars and cents that Leon has expressed himself at the head of his organization.

It's a system that has its conveniences.

Swapping commodities for commodities would be unhandy, doubtless.

Furthermore, there are things besides commodities.

Illustratively, I claim to be a newspaperman. My function is to gather useful information or evolve instructive editorial matter. Now, suppose that, having done so, I were to call in at the grocery store.

I explain to the clerk that I was in possession of facts or had doped out reflections that would be extremely profitable to him, if I'd reveal 'em over his counter, and then say, "What'll you gimme for 'em in sacks of flour, pounds of coffee or gallons of molasses?"

Obviously, it would be an almost impossible method of dickerin'.

The substitute method is to have a little scrap of intrinsically worthless paper to represent the transaction and conclude the bargain accordingly.

That's all right in the retail field and it continued to serve wholesale purposes until we began getting up into near-infinities between huge industries and groups of 'em, between capital and labor, each generally — between nations and probably between generations.

I'm pretty well satisfied that expert economists themselves didn't realize what they were getting into when the current strife began.

Now it evidently is dawning on 'em, for they're doing a bit of worrying if mere money'll survive for much longer, and what sort of a substitute they'll have to find for comparatively small change in the imminent future.

Oh, yes. Nickels and dimes still will serve to jingle in pants pockets, but economists reckon in millions and billions—and trillions, even, are suggested.

The forecast is that our big trading henceforward will be in units of production management. It's a system that'll survive the war, according to the economic sharks. They think it'll have to, for the salvation alike of producers and consumers. Their theory is that it's the only thing that'll save the world from its worst post-war predicament.

Whether or not it immediately will continue on, uninterrupted, in all countries is a controverted question. We'll never see a post-war end of our present Yankee "controls," though, in the judgment of the great majority of all our economic prognosticators.

Keeping It Going
The thing's established. All that is necessary is to keep it going.

It's disagreeable now — because it's a war adjunct, and war's disagreeable.

What'll be like afterward is a subject for speculation.

If it ensues, it'll be too governmental for some present tastes.

LOOKING AT LIFE

—By Erich Brandeis

Many years ago I was a newspaper reporter in Oakland, California.

I worked in the branch office of a San Francisco newspaper, in the back of a store.

My hours were from three in the afternoon until three in the morning. My pay was well under $20 a week.

I didn't mind the work. I didn't mind the pay. (Those aren't things you mind when you are twenty-one.)

But there was one thing I did mind.

In front of the store there was an electric sign with the name of my paper emblazoned on it.

As the "late shift" man, it was my duty to pull in the sign when I closed up.

That was below my dignity. That was unworthy of a journalist.

So I made a deal with an old bum who used to hang around the place. I engaged him to come at three every morning and pull in the sign. For that, I contracted to pay him five cents a night.

And every Monday—pay-day—I promptly handed him his thirty cents, which he just as promptly took to the nearest saloon for reinforcements.

At I got older I did many a task just as menial as pulling in that sign, without the slightest bother about what people would think about me.

And today as middle age has put its indelible rubberstamp of wrinkles upon my forehead, my greatest pleasure is to go about my garden dressed like a tramp.

I have found that that skimmed milk becomes no richer by labeling it cream, while cream is cream by its label.

What Noted People Say

CAMDEN—Donald M. Nelson, war production chief: "There are tough times ahead of us. We have taken up the slack in our wasteful economy and from here on it is going to hurt."

WASHINGTON—Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress describes Great Britain as the bridgehead for a great offensive and adds: "Sooner—sooner perhaps than our enemies believe possible—the British cause themselves will not resist but strike."

"We will have to come to the realization that there are not enough single men, that there are not enough married men without children, to mobilize, say, between 10 and 13 millions in the United States."

WASHINGTON—Leon Henderson, again appeals to motorists in unrationed states to start immediately to conserve tires: "We've got to save everywhere we can. To effect that saving we must cut out mileage—eliminate unnecessary driving—because if we don't we're likely to coast right into Hitler's lap."

Women buy 100 per cent of the open-toed shoes and 97 per cent of the finger waves. They are the largest consumers of motion pictures and chicken chow mein.

Resuscitators Given To OCD

Will Be Kept At Central Fire Station For Emergency Use If Needed

It was announced in city hall meeting last night that the Lawrence County chapter of Infantile Paralysis has presented to the OCD here two resuscitators, costing approximately $700, for use in this vicinity.

The announcement was made by Presley Jones, post commander of Air raid wardens, Tenth precinct, second ward, where the idea was originated. He said the Infantile Paralysis chapter directors decided the idea was good and approved it. The resuscitators will be kept at the Central fire department here. The fire department has a rescue squad, an ambulance and an inhalator. However, no resuscitators are in city or OCD service, hence the gift.

During last night's meeting Chief Air Raid Warden Frank Sargent explained blackout regulations, instructed wardens to take no orders excepting from their immediate superior and explained some problems. Wardens were instructed to turn out for the spectacle to be held Saturday night at Taggart stadium. Post commanders last night detailed a man from each post to report at 7 p. m. Wednesday at Taggart field for instructions.

Total war calls for the greatest physical stamina ever demanded. Armies of able-bodied supermen are needed to bring victory.

Only the most rugged hearts will stand up under the strain. Any man with heart disease is disqualified for active duty.

This is especially true in the air corps.

High altitudes and dive bombing call for strong constitutions.

Recruits for the cadet flying corps must pass rigid tests.

Athletic prowess is not a guarantee of fitness for flying.

Athletes are more prone to faint than non-athletes.

Relatively few men are able to become aviators.

They do not possess the stamina, ability and skill required.

The military fliers needs heart and circulation efficiency.

OCD NOTES

Activities Of O. C. D.
Workers Are Outlined In This Column

It is estimated there are more than 1,000 persons engaged in the OCD movement in this city. However, approximately only 50 per cent of this number have been certified as eligible to perform the duties. Some of them are yet taking courses in First Aid and other movements affiliated with the OCD and some who have qualified have not taken the oath—which holds off eligibility.

Only a few days remain until the OCD free show at Taggart field. It is scheduled for Saturday. The bomb show will not be the only feature. However, it will be the big feature. Every group included in the OCD will have representation.

When the OCD spectacle is staged Saturday night at Taggart stadium folk who like pageants will witness one and that isn't maybe. According to plans announced last night at a senior air raid warden session large squads of men from every branch of the OCD will appear. They'll form early in Lutton street alongside Ben Franklin Junior high school and parade into the stadium. In order that there will be no slip-ups each post commander has been instructed to send a member of his force to Taggart stadium at 7 p. m. Wednesday to receive instructions.

Frank Sargent, chief air raid warden, last night announced that the air raid warden is in charge of a district—not auxiliary police. The auxiliary police he pointed out helps the police to carry on.

There will be no Saturday classes. OCD headquarters announced last night. No doubt some of them will not have as many members Wednesday night as usual because of some receiving instructions at Taggart stadium.

It is reported that all fines levied for blackout violations go to the county of Lawrence. So far as known no prosecutions were brought from the last blackout. One report says an investigator was employed by one firm to determine who "shot on the lights."

It was pointed out last night at the city hall OCD session that persons certified as wardens are not official wardens until they take the oath of office.

Body Of Woman Is Found Under Bridge

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—Pittsburgh police today termed "suicide" the death of a 26-year-old Wilkensburg woman whose broken body was found beneath a bridge in Frick park late yesterday.

The dead woman was Mrs. Dorothy Gray, mother of an eight-year-old son. Her body was identified at the county morgue by her husband, Robert, who said he and his wife had been separated since last July.

A search for the woman's body was instituted by a park guard after W. C. Hawley of suburban Forest Hills inquired if "any bodies" had been found in the park. Hawley said that Mrs. Gray had left her car about 4 a. m. yesterday and apparently had not gone home. He said she had appeared "despondent over her family trouble." Hawley was not held by police.

Production of war equipment has reached tremendous proportions. The U. S. Army needs skilled men in the field—thousands of them RIGHT NOW—to keep this huge mass of machinery in first-class fighting condition.

AIR FORCES—We're building the biggest, mightiest Air Force on earth. Thousands of skilled mechanics are needed to keep those great planes flying and fighting. Aviation has a splendid future and there's no finer training for it than in the Army Air Forces.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT—Guns and ammunition are decisive weapons in war, and it takes skilled manpower to keep them shooting fast and straight. Men with experience as automobile, truck and tractor mechanics, armorers, machinists and skilled men of other trades are urgently needed by the Ordnance Department. Technical training in ordnance work is not a requirement.

THIS opportunity to get in now and go places in the Air Forces, Signal Corps or Ordnance Department is open to any skilled specialist between the ages of 18 and 44, inclusive, who is physically fit and does not now occupy a key position in a vital war industry. According to ability, promotions to higher grades and increases in pay may be expected. You've told yourself you'd be ready whenever your country needs you. That time is now! Test Blackout At State Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—Dauphin county defense council officials today commended the cooperation of civilians and defense workers in last night's half-hour test blackout that blanketed Harrisburg and vicinity.

Describing the test as the "best yet," council officials said all civilian defense units were on the job and successfully battled incendiary and gas bombs and other simulated incidents. The only casualties were Mrs. John Loper 65, who fell down a flight of steps in her home during the blackout and air raid warden Daniel Roberts who reportedly was attacked by two unidentified soldiers when he ordered them to abandon temporarily their car and seek shelter during the test.

Tennessee expressed the notion the other day, in a discussion of the notion of giving the president automatic power over wage-and-price fixing.

The scheme's advocates contended that this was a far simpler proceeding than to leave wage-and-price-fixing in Congress' hands.

"Sure," agreed Al Gore, "but it would be still simpler for Congress to quit and hand the whole country over to a federal dictator. If simplicity's all we want, that's how to arrive at it."

Suber Commends Wake Isle Film

Tribute To Marine Corps Valor Is Praised By Commandant Of Marine Corps League

Cecil F. Suber, Commandant of the Gunnersy Sgt. Harry T. Burns Detachment, Marine Corps League, who attended a premier showing of the United States Marine Corps epic, "Wake Island" in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, during the Marine Corps League convention, had this to say about "Wake Island," which will be shown at the Penn Theater, September 23:

"I had anticipated merely another war picture, so I was entirely unprepared for the shock 'Wake Island' gave me. 'All Quiet on the Western Front' was to the first World War. 'I' took twelve years after the first World War to produce 'All Quiet' but Paramount today has given us 'Wake Island' an astounding picture of the Marine's valiant stand last December in the face of overwhelming odds."

"Wake Island" is a true blue tribute to Marine valor. It is all reality, minus frills and fancies, the most dramatic and exciting story to come out of this war. There are some chilling battle scenes that hold one in constant suspense. Yes, Hollywood has at last made a picture that is near factual as an outstanding episode in modern warfare. "It brought my blood to the boiling point, and it will make you feel, as I felt, that the heroes of 'Wake Island' did not die in vain."

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exclusively prepared emollient is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium to skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy. It helps keep the skin soft and pliable, thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin, for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

The city also is required to put up a surety bond for the equipment and this is now being studied by a local insurance agency.

Phone Operators Can Not Give Any Scores

Telephone answers to the question—"What's the score?" even for New Castle High football results, are out while the war lasts because of the extra load that hundreds of such queries place on telephone facilities.

The New Castle News has in the past, given high school scores to all who telephoned the newspaper during or after a game. On nights when major games were played, the queries were so numerous that Bell telephone operators helped out by giving the score from the Bell central office to the newsman.

The News seeking that information. Score queries came with a rush from many stay-at-home football fans almost immediately after the final whistle of every game. On many occasions six telephone lines at the News office were kept busy providing this service.

But war has brought about many changes, including an unprecedented need for essential telephone service. The News management realizes that interest in the fortunes of the home team is as keen as ever, but under the circumstances no longer can provide scores by telephone for the duration.

Paul J. Baldwin, district manager for the Bell Telephone Company, said that for the same reason, Bell telephone operators no longer will be able to give same results.

Secretary Knox Makes Reply To Plane Criticism

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—In an indirect reply to congressional criticism, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox intimated today that he was satisfied with the performance of his patrol planes in the Aleutian islands.

Asked at his press conference if he would comment on charges made by Sen. Walgren (D-Wash.) that planes being used by the navy in Alaska "are a joke" and can fly only "120 miles an hour," Knox replied: "I don't care to reply to the senator but you can take the batting average and decide for yourself."

Knox obviously was referring to recent communiques on the Aleutian islands conflict in which slow flying navy patrol planes have been doing what the navy terms excellent reconnaissance work, as well as bombing of Japanese positions in the Kiska island area.

Navy officials repeatedly have asserted that while the B-17 patrol planes are slow they are excellent for reconnaissance work over vast areas especially in the Pacific.

Urges Township Residents To Get Scrap Metal Ready

Chairman H. M. Reynolds, in charge of the scrap collection in Union township, today called upon all residents of the township to collect all the scrap possible to be used in the war effort.

Five pounds of metal from each resident of the township would swell the total from that district considerably. Justice Reynolds pointed out. When the metal has been assembled, a central point will be designated where it can be brought for collection.

Steaming really means shaping the body—boat, airplane, locomotive, automobile—so that it parts air or water with the least possible resistance.

NEWS MAN GIVES STORY OF TRIP ON TORPEDO PLANE

carrier. Planes already were thundering down the rolling runway. Then there was the agonizing suspense as we tore down the flat deck and slid slowly off the bow.

Now we are slashing through cloud flecked skies in three formidable formations. Dive bombers, piled up like blocks, are cruising off our left wing. An equal number of bombers are stretched out ahead. Peering around the cockpit ahead of me I can see the face of Pilot Lt. Bruce Harwood of Claremont, Calif. He knows that success or failure of our mission probably will decide the battle of the Solomon Islands.

Then I hear Bruce's cool voice crackling in my earphones: "The carrier is right up ahead about sixty miles. Is everything all ready back there Sullivan?" "Everything ready, sir," Sullivan snaps. Several minutes later, then Sullivan reports: "Number two has dropped back. I think he may be having engine trouble."

Paul J. Baldwin, district manager for the Bell Telephone Company, said that for the same reason, Bell telephone operators no longer will be able to give same results.

Several minutes later, then Sullivan reports: "Number two has dropped back. I think he may be having engine trouble."

Now we are approaching the enemy's reported position and my legs are beginning to turn to putty. My throat is dry and parched. Every time I swallow it feels like I am swallowing a blister. My heart is pumping like an old drill.

Enemy Sighted I glance at my Wright watch. It is 1:00. A p.m. our search is burning up precious gasoline. Then the words shoot through my earphones: "There they are over to the port side."

I detect four streaks of white in the sea 20 miles off our left wing. The group commander's sharp voice barks: "Attack! Attack! John take the carrier. Bruce put a couple of pickles in the cruiser, the rest of them in the carrier."

I can see enemy ships now through the cloud vapor. From our great height they look like toy ships in a bathtub. There are four of them: a carrier, a cruiser, two destroyers. They are fanning out frantically in all directions. We are losing altitude fast.

The carrier looks like a giant ironing board. She's small in comparison with our floating airdromes. Her reddish brown flight deck is sliced off abruptly about 50 feet short of the bow, giving the impression of a huge whale with its head half chopped off.

Our dive bombers high above are stringing out across a great vault of sky, roaring into the sun. We are approaching from the northwest, losing altitude. The carrier, making about 25 knots, is swinging furiously into the wind. Four planes are poised on deck.

We have dropped lower and now I can see angry bursts of orange flame belching from the carrier's five-inch gun turrets which stuck out like warts from the ship's sides. Suddenly black puffs appear like magic in the air in front of us.

Dive Bombers Scream Down Now our dive bombers are screaming down on the sun, diving in demoniacal fury. Black blur of bombs is falling like tiny teardrops. The carrier is wheeling violently in giddy circles in a desperate effort to dodge the shower of hot iron.

Suddenly a giant pillar of smoke and flame arises from the bow of the doomed carrier. The group commander's voice booms exultantly: "It looks like someone got a good hit."

They are the first words spoken since the attack began. I'd expected to hear hysterical curses of vengeance from the pilots as they moved in for the kill.

Then Bruce's voice hissed, "Here comes a Zero. Get on your guns." "I see the deadly Jap plane to our starboard about 300 feet above us and my heart stops. Sullivan's machine gun hammers nervously behind me. The bullets are falling short but they evidently frightened the Jap. He disappears.

The thought occurs to me that I am not wearing a parachute. Before taking off, I found the shoulder straps were too loose and I didn't know how to adjust them to fit.

Now we are skimming over water as Bruce maneuvers into position to release his "tin fish". The carrier is smoking furiously but still is moving in tight little circles as if caught in a revolving door. We are roaring in from the southwest on a 45 degree angle, aiming for the starboard.

Closer and Closer The throbs of screaming shells jars the plane and I hold my breath. There isn't time to pray. Closer and closer we come, hugging the water. Now we have narrowed the gap to 1000 yards and I wonder when Bruce will release his "pickle". I want to get out of here—fast.

The carrier is a smoking inferno. She is enveloped in smoke and flame from stem to stern. Most of her gun batteries have been wiped out by near misses but through the smoke I can see brilliant orange bursts still winking from the deck.

Now we are within 800 yards and the flaming carrier is rushing up to meet us. I feel the plane shudder as Bruce impulsively unlatches the "pickle". He kicks the rudder hard and we swing off sharply to the left directly in the line of fire of a destroyer.

The carrier is behind us and I look back to see if Bruce's calling card has been delivered. A giant plume of flame is belching from the carrier's bow where our torpedo has plowed home. This is one fire LaGuardia won't attend.

I am about to congratulate myself on the miracle which still finds me alive when terror again clutches at my throat. A Zero is hanging in the sky slightly ahead and about 500 feet above us. I watch the Jap deliberately perform a wingover in his trim little ship, then come screaming down diabolical on our tail.

We are flying at an altitude of 100 feet. The Zero is 200 feet above, 500 yards behind and closing fast. The Jap is so close I can almost count his teeth. White hot spurts of fire in his wings, trailed by gray wisps of smoke, tell me he is shooting at us. Sullivan's machine gun begins to chatter excitedly and I see an angry yellow hail of tracers squirting into the wings of the Jap.

Jap Driven Off A terrible thought pounds my brain that I am at the mercy of the Jap. I have been sitting high in an elevated seat so as better to view the action. Instinctively, I jam the lever down on my right, lowering the seat as far as it will descend.

Sullivan's machine gun still is murmuring madly. For what seems an eternity I wait for the bullets to cease my back. Then Sullivan's voice explodes: "I hit him! He didn't go down but I chased him away."

Now we are roaring southeast to effect a rendezvous with our squadron. The doomed carrier is ten miles behind and has stopped dead in the water. A turnip-shaped column of smoke is billowing 1000 feet into the sky. She is a funeral pyre for hundreds of Jap seamen.

Our planes are appearing from nowhere and quietly slipping into formation. We count noses. None is missing, although a few gaping holes in wings and fuselages gape proudly in the wind on the mast of a cruiser. It occurs to me that Old Glory knows that we have struck another blow for freedom this afternoon.

The attack on the carrier lasted 20 minutes. But in those 20 minutes I lived a lifetime.

JAP SEAPLANE DROPPED BOMB ON WEST COAST

though it was in its scope and in its effects, was regarded as possibly the first experiment on an enemy power by the Japanese of its development of a big, long-range airplane-carrying submarine.

Naval authorities said that before the war the Japanese had been experimenting on this type of over-size submarine built along the lines of the French 2800-ton Surcouf, which carried a small airplane.

Surcouf was taken over by the Free French after the fall of France, was lost in action last spring.

Seaplane On Sub The Japanese submarine of this type was said to be of 1955 tons and with a cruising range of 12,000 miles. A seaplane, with folded wings, was carried on the deck of the submarine back of the coning tower.

The army in its official, cautious, worded communique acknowledged that the mysterious seaplane "might" have been carried on a submarine. The statement said: "The western defense command is investigating the circumstances surrounding the discovery on Sept. 9 of fragments of what appear to have been an incendiary bomb."

"These fragments were found by personnel of the U. S. Forestry Service on Mount Emily, nine miles northeast of Brookings, Oregon."

"Markings on the bomb fragments indicated that the missile was of Japanese origin."

"At about 6 a. m. (PWT) Sept. 9, a small unidentified seaplane was observed coming inland from the sea and had a pole hanging over the bow at the same point headed toward the sea."

"Due to poor visibility the plane was not seen on its westerly trip."

"At 6:24 a. m., Howard Gardner, a forestry service observer on Mount Emily, reported seeing an unidentified seaplane come from the west, circle, and land on the beach."

"He described the plane as a small single-motored biplane, with a single float and small floats on the wing tips."

Small Plane "The plane appeared to be small and of low speed."

Draft Director Being Quizzed

Congress Committee Seeks Clarification On Various Draft Conflicts

By ROBERT HUMPHREYS (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Conflicting statements on the prospects of drafting 18 and 19 year old youths, and fathers of children, today resulted in Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, being summoned before a committee of congress for a general clarification of the situation.

Gen. Hershey, scheduled to take the witness stand before the Tolson committee will be asked a series of prepared questions designed to obtain definite answers on the whole draft picture and eliminate the confusion that exists.

The questioning will be undertaken by Rep. George Bender (R-Ohio), who has been assigned by the committee to examine Gen. Hershey in hearings just getting underway on the problem of manpower allocation.

Picture Confused "The entire picture has become so confused that we intend to get plain and clear statements from Gen. Hershey on each thing now in doubt," Bender asserted.

"In Asbury Park, N. J., two nights ago, Gen. Hershey was placed in the light of saying that men with children will be subject to call in 1943. The other day the President said that boys, 18 to 19 years old, would not be called until next year."

"There have been a lot of contradictory statements made on all these points and Gen. Hershey has been one of the worst offenders if he has been quoted correctly. We intend to get to the bottom of the whole matter, and find out whether we are on foot or on horseback."

The committee, originally constituted by the house to inquire into labor migration as it effects defense, has decided to take up the whole manpower question.

"The hearings," said Rep. Toland (D-Calif., committee chairman, will be devoted to a thorough-going inquiry into the efforts now reportedly going forward to solve the critical manpower issue.

"The committee is particularly desirous of ascertaining the effect on labor supply of the War Production Board's recent realignment and further, to determine what plans the WPB and the war manpower commission have to effectuate the necessary integration between manpower supply and war production requirements."

Gas Rationing Books Stolen

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—State OPA investigators and city police today intensified a search for thieves who stole nearly 4,000 gasoline rationing books—representing 1,000,000 gallons—from a West Philadelphia district ration office.

An OPA spokesman said the theft was "undoubtedly the largest in the country since rationing began." Other sources declared the ration books might be sold at bootleg and black market prices for approximately $25,000.

Office of War Information officials announced that the intruders "entered one of four unlocked windows at the front of the office sometime between its closing Saturday and its opening" yesterday. The district office covers a population of 250,000.

Willkies Visits Teheran, Iran

(International News Service)

TEHERAN, Iran, Sept. 15.—Wendell L. Willkie was in Iran today to resume his conferences with rulers and political leaders of the middle eastern nations following his arrival by plane yesterday from Baghdad, Iraq, where he declared that so far on his journey through the middle east he had found "unanimous faith in the cause of the allied nations."

Members of Willkie's party said he had left Baghdad in high spirits over the reception there.

"You are all modern thieves of Baghdad—you have stolen my heart," Willkie declared to those who came to see him off.

Women Work In Shipyards

Wield Drills And Swing Hammers—More Are To Be Employed

By JANE COCHRAN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Women are welding a drill and swinging a hammer in ever-increasing numbers in the nation's shipbuilding yards and their number is due for a sharp increase.

As the New York Navy Yard revealed that 125 women are employed today as mechanics for the first time in the yard's 141-year history, Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, regional director of the national labor relations work, wound up her work in preparation to taking over a new post with the Todd Shipyards Corp. tomorrow.

Mrs. Herrick, one of the most prominent women in the labor field, will become director of personnel and labor relations for the corporation and a major part of her work will be introducing women into the shipyards as laborers.

Women are already employed as laborers in shipyards along both the eastern and western coasts, and shipbuilding forecast that more of the petticoat brigade will join the ranks of the boat builders as soon as they can be trained.

They have the patience to do repetitive inspection tasks. Navy yard shop supervisors have found that women are well-fitted for these jobs, and they believe that it will be in these fields that they will most successfully relieve men for combat duty.

Shop officials at the Brooklyn Navy Yard have expressed satisfaction over performance of the first women laborers and they're looking forward to the hundreds of others expected to follow.

Of the 20,000 women who applied when the civil service commission announced women could take an examination for prospective mechanics, 6,000 were examined and 3,000 were found qualified.

One hundred twenty-five are already on the job, with the largest group at work in the shipfitters' shop.

Twenty-five of the Navy's new mechanics are college graduates, and five have done post-graduate work. Forty-seven have had at least two years college work and only three failed to finish high school. Their average 28 years in age and their professions vary from musicians to schoolteachers.

More Killings Are Admitted Says Officials

(International News Service)

SANTA MARIA, Calif., Sept. 15.—In addition to his confession that he ruthlessly murdered two women social workers in Wisconsin, Robert Taylor Bailey, 21, army deserter from Fort Bragg, N. C., has admitted killing two Negroes in Mississippi "when he was a kid," Santa Maria authorities disclosed today.

The bullet-riddled and nude bodies of the two women, Miss Neil Pietrangeli, 30, and Miss Dorothy Baun, 32, were found last Tuesday on a little traveled road near Tomah, Wis.

He was arrested in Santa Maria after he had fled across the country with two other girls.

Deputy District Attorney Thomas P. Weldon revealed that after Bailey confessed killing the two women he declared: "I never killed anybody else in my life except two Negroes in Mississippi. One of them I killed in a watermelon patch when I was a kid and the other I killed because I didn't like him. I killed the first one near Biloxi, and the other one near Pascoucoula, Miss. I was just a kid both times."

Weldon said in view of Bailey's confession to killing the two women he would not go further into the story of the murder of the two Negroes.

New Castle Loses Fullback Brothers

Athlete Sustains Torn Ligament; Second Team Routs Third Club 32 To 0

EAST GAME FRIDAY WILL BEGIN AT 8:15

Elkins Brothers, who flaunted New Castle high's gridiron colors so majestically Friday night against Butler high, will be out of action for about six weeks.

Head Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh yesterday disclosed that the ex-George Washington junior high star has suffered a torn ligament in his left knee. Big, piston-legged and equipped with rare leg drive, the sophomore colored athlete started at fullback and looked impressive until he was injured.

The remainder of the squad reported for Monday's session ready and willing to start kicking for Friday's non-league tussle with Youngstown East at Taggart stadium.

Zubkowsky Improved

John Zubkowsky, who played against Butler despite a swollen left elbow, was greatly improved yesterday and predicted that he will be in near top form for the Ohioans.

Yesterday's drills were highlighted by a regulation skirmish involving the second and third stringers. The second team stepped on the accelerator as it rang up an imposing 32-0 triumph. Play was fierce throughout.

Denver Newman started the Reds on to victory by breaking through and blocking a punt. Albert Germain pounced on the piskin over the goal line. Eddie Jacobs, who played spectacularly throughout at fullback, set up the second score by intercepting a pass deep in the Whites' territory. Roscoe Williams swept wide around left end for the score, five seconds before the end of the half.

In the meantime, the varsity went through a brisk signal drill and then heard Bridenbaugh's recess orders. Jesse Gunn filled Brothers' fullback seat with Tom Sanfilippo taking over Gunn's post on the line. The remainder of the lineup was the same as the one that punched holes into Butler.

Two worthy prospects, Ted Lash and Eddie Jacobs, are being groomed for the fullback position.

Line Play Weak. Bridenbaugh said that he was pleased with the team's showing—in some respects.

"We were woefully weak on offensive line play. The blocking was good in spots. We must improve in both phases before running into the tough opposition," he said.

Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner said that the game will start at 8:15 o'clock instead of 8 o'clock.

The offensive strength displayed by the "Cane" edition has stirred considerable comment along local avenues. As a result, a bigger gallery than last Friday is anticipated.

In view of his Ticket Manager Bob Mills urges local fans to purchase tickets early thus eliminating pre-game congestion. The tickets went on the sale counter this morning in the Sporting Goods store, 105 North Mercer street.

Met Emmett Rocco, former heavyweight pugilist, meandering along the Main Stem last night. He resides at Ellwood City where he manipulates a truck. In his fistie day Emmet met and beat some of the best in his class. He was accompanied here by the Mrs. and their two beautiful daughters.

Emmett discussed days of yesterday and said he regretted not staying with Jimmy Dunn and also on the Pacific coast where things seemed to leap into his hands. His squat size interfered to a degree with his boxing but he was decidedly popular and promoters profited every time he flung gloves.

Talking about fights—there's a pair on tonight in two different cities which will fetch attention. Mose Brown battles Ezzard Charles in a light-heavyweight in Pittsburgh and Tami Mauriello will invade Cleveland to oppose Jimmy Bivins of that town.

Wes Ferrell, Team Quit Playing Field; Disagree With Ump

(International News Service) NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Sept. 14.—Wesley Ferrell today has lost none of the Irish temper for which he was known in his heyday as an American League pitcher.

Now manager of the Lynchburg team in the Virginia League, Ferrell and his entire ball club walked off the field and went home to Lynchburg yesterday because Ferrell didn't like an umpire's decision.

Admissions were refunded to 1,400 spectators, and Newport News was awarded the game on forfeit. Bobby Deese, Lynchburg shortstop, was called out at first base on a close one, and then banished from the game for arguing against the decision to which Ferrell also objected.

Umpires recommended suspension and a fine for Ferrell, but Virginia League President C. R. Williams at Roanoke said he had not decided on any action in the case.

Among other things, early season returns imply that New Castle high can expect trouble up to its neck when kickoff times approaches for Beaver Falls and Washington (Pa.) dates. . . .

By JOHN PAGET HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—Realizing the war-time demands for physical fitness among young men who face service with the armed forces, athletic officials at Lehigh university today have underway a toughening program combining both sports and physical education. . . .

Highlighting the program is an expanded calendar of intra-mural sports prompted by war-time bans on the use of buses to transport athletic teams to inter-school competition. . . .

"Activities have been added to this new sports program which will harden men for active service with the armed forces," said Ray Bartlett, director of physical education. . . .

CALISTHENICS STRESSED This year's program stresses calisthenics and gymnastic workouts as well as intra-mural competition. A special physical education course for men in the U. S. naval reserve corps has been opened and registrants will have to pass certain performance tests at the end of the year for credit. . . .

Compulsory physical education at Lehigh dates from World War I. Classes formerly met two hours each week during the school year, but under the war-time program students must attend three sessions a week during the four-year college course. Although not required, men have been urged to spend at least one hour daily in the school's gymnasium. . . .

One of the biggest sporting events held here in many years will be staged at Marshall field, Scott street, Sunday afternoon, when Joe Factor, Ecclesion club physical director, presents a track-field meet and a championship softball battle.

The appearance of Stella Walsh, famous athletic star, highlights the show.

Track and field teams from Harbrace, Turtle Creek, Washington, Reipas A. C., Finnish National camp and several other outstanding district teams will participate.

The Golden Stars of Pittsburgh, East Liverpool, Joe Factors Variety Girls of this city and Stella Walsh and her nationally famous Polish Olympic champs will gather for the contests.

Co-chairman Joe Factor and Stanley Coprowski are working diligently to complete plans for the gala affair. The following aides, well known local sportsmen, are on the committee:

Andy "Coots" Venditte, "Dike" Monsey, Vic Ross, Joe Ross, Mike King, Jake DeFonso, Frank Mastern, Paul Ellsworth, Paul Cuba, Francis Frey, Ray Wallace, Bill Klee and Rocco Viggiano.

SPORT CAPSULES

LLOYD LEADS Lloyd Warner, veteran Phils outfielder, holds the National League record for getting the most hits in his first year in the senior circuit. Warner made 223 hits in 1927, his initial year.

Chuck Klein is nearest to Warner's record with 219 base knocks made in 1929, his first year with the Phils. Both Warner and Klein played in 150 games in those years.

STILL STARRING Frank Baumholtz, the hard hitting outfielder of Great Lakes, is not a big fellow. He stands five feet, ten and weighs 170. The Reds hope to have him after the war's end.

THAT'S SOMETHING Whitey Platt, outfield with Madison in the Three-I League, played baseball before the King and Queen of England. He was with an amateur team that toured Europe.

MARYLAND ANGLING Maryland's new football coach, Clark Shaughnessy, is seeking an assistant coach from the pro ranks. He has been angling for Danny Fortmann of the Bears.

RATED TOPS BOSTON—Coach Denny Myers rates Co-captain Fred Naumetz of Boston College the best center in college ranks and as good as any in the professional league.

NAVY OFFICER George Sauer, New Hampshire coach and former star of the Green Bay Packers, is the navy's athletic officer at Pensacola.

IF Ted Lyons can hold out four more years he figures he can total 300 victories for a lifetime pitching mark.

Yankees Tack Up 13th A. L. Gonfalon

Cards Spurt Whips Phillies, 6-3; Dodgers Trail By Game And A Half

RED SOX CINCH 2ND PLACE POST

By JACK MAHON

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The Yanks are coming, buddy, you won't have to worry about that—but just who is going to meet them in the 1942 world series is something else again.

While the men of Uncle Joe McCarthy were winning their sixth pennant in the last seven seasons yesterday, St. Louis' fighting Cardinals pulled a full game and a half ahead of the Dodgers by whipping the Phillies, 6 to 3, with a four run rally in the ninth inning of a losing ball game at Philadelphia.

Dodgers Idle As the Dodgers were idle, and will be again today when the Cards tangle with the lowly Phils for the last time, it still is a bit too early to hand the pennant over to the boys from the city famous for its blues songs.

If you can take your mind off the red hot race for the national league flag for a moment, we think it only fitting and proper for you to doff your cap in salute to the Yankees, one of baseball's greatest and most consistently brilliant teams.

Manager McCarthy's men, behind Ernie Bonham, who won his 29th game, and the four hits of Joe DiMaggio, who slammed out his 19th homer, lambasted the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 3, to clinch the flag they have saved since stars on so often in the last decade.

It was the seventh pennant the Yanks have won for Joe McCarthy and the thirteenth they have captured in history. They also won six under the guiding hand of the late Miller Huggins.

New York accepted its honors modestly and most of the conversation as the boys left Cleveland had to do with just who—the 1941 champion Dodgers or the amazing St. Louis Cards—would have to face in the big pay-off series this fall.

St. Louis, despite a scare in which the Phils pushed across a couple of runs in the seventh inning to take a 3 to 2 lead came back with four runs in the ninth inning to win their 31st decision in their 37 games.

Harry Walker, with one out in the ninth, dropped a triple in left field. The kid brother of Dixie Walker, Dodger favorite, really set the powder keg off.

Bucos Lose, 6-1 For Enos Slaughter promptly tied the score with a single and Stan Musial greeted relief pitcher Tommy Hughes with a double to right. Slaughter crashing into catcher Tom Livingston at the plate to score the run that pushed St. Louis into a 4 to 3 lead. Ken O'Dea followed with a single that added another run, bringing in pitcher Sam Nahem but Etten bobbed Hopp's grounder and Murtaugh made a wild throw, for the Phil's sixth error, giving the Cards their last run.

In the other national league games the Giants walloped Pittsburgh 6-1, and Boston beat Chicago 4 to 2.

Boston, though dropping a 4 to 2 verdict to the Chicago White Sox, have second place in the American league sewed up. Other games saw Washington beat the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 6 and St. Louis outsmash those ever-amazing Philly Athletics, 5 to 4, in sixteen innings.

Teachers Must Pass Physical Tests

AKRON, O., Sept. 15.—The Board of Education, meeting here Monday, voted 4 to 1 that teachers and other employees of the public schools be required to undergo periodic physical examinations, as recently recommended by Superintendent of Schools Otis C. Hutton.

Board Member Kurt Arnold, in voting against the measure, declared that such a step was undesirable at this time due to the shortage of teachers and other school employees caused by "the present crisis."

In addition to requiring regular examinations, the board ruling authorizes the superintendent to require such an examination at any time from any employee of the school system, when in his opinion the examination is necessary for the best interests of the system.

Eastman School Broadcasts Hit

(International News Service) ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 15.—American Federation of Musicians' policy banning student musicians from the air will halt further broadcasts by the Eastman School of Music, Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the school revealed today.

Dr. Hanson said that many members of the Eastman school symphony orchestra of 120 instrumentalists are students who do not belong to the union and therefore are subject to the radio prohibition announced by James C. Petrillo, president of the musicians union.

The Eastman-Rochester symphony orchestra and the Rochester symphony orchestra will however broadcast this season as all the musicians are members of the union.

Usually unknown and unnoticed by the casual visitor to Bartholdi's Goddess of Liberty statue, in New York harbor, is the broken shackle which lies at her feet. It is symbolic of the breaking of the bonds which had fettered the nation in its struggle for freedom.

New U. S. Defense Base On Galapagos Islands One Of Most Important

(Editor's note: The new American defense base on the Galapagos Islands and at the Ecuadorian seaport of Santa Elena is discussed in the following article by Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author of "Mechanized Might.")

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG

Written Especially for International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The year 1942 has been one of bitter disappointments for Herr Hitler, not the least of which was Brazil's declaration of war against the Axis. Now this has been followed shortly by Ecuador's consent to our occupation of the Galapagos Islands, and the granting to us of the coastal port of Santa Elena, as much needed bases for our defense of the Panama Canal and Central America from the Pacific side.

The key requirements for hemispheric defense is that our bases should be located in South America below both the east and west bulges of that continent. Now this is an accomplished fact—Brazil on the east coast and Ecuador on the west. It appears that all of the northern nations of South America down to the extreme southern end of the continent are with us. Chile and Argentina are still remaining neutral and conducting normal relations with the Axis nations. But, many expert observers believe that these two countries soon will come wholeheartedly into our "good neighbor" American solidarity, all other South American nations having set this example.

Our defense of the Panama Canal from the east or Caribbean side, is now perfectly set up with our numerous protective island bases joining the mainlands of both North and South America. Therefore, this acquiring of bases in the Pacific should cheer the United Nations. Our eastern string of protective bases was completed long ago by President Roosevelt's trading of 50 over-aged destroyers to Great Britain.

The largest and most useable of several groups of islands in the Pacific ocean west of the Panama canal are the Galapagos which are approximately a thousand miles southwest of the Pacific entrance to the canal, and about 600 miles due west of the coast of Ecuador. They are volcanic islands discovered in 1832 and in 1892 were officially renamed the Colón archipelago. They have a total area of 2,400 square miles, and at places rise to a height of 3,600 feet. The largest island is Albemarle which is 60 miles long. They are all quite arid, though turtles of tremendous size are caught there. Cotton, figs, oranges and tobacco have been planted with some success. The permanent population is not over 500 people.

Ecuador has a penal settlement on Charles Island, one of the Galapagos group, where her most desperate criminals are sent. The islands provide ample and excellent naval, air and submarine base facilities which make a wonderful protective area in conjunction with the mainland base at Santa Elena. This coastal city is at the extreme western edge of Ecuador. It is at the southern end of the Santa Elena bay and the northern point of the great gulf of Guayaquil. In other words, it is ideal for defense purposes.

The other islands in this general location are of considerable interest. During late 1940, or early 1941, the Cocos Island, which is about midway between Galapagos and the canal, was mentioned as a desirable defense base for our forces. However, it was stated later that it was impossible to use Cocos as a base.

Many Petitions For Rent Boosts Are Turned Down

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—In the rejection of 600 of 800 petitions from landlords to raise rents, the office of the rent area administrator here defined some legitimate and illegitimate reasons for rent increases.

If the stork visits tenants, the landlord cannot raise rents unless he pays for electricity, water, etc. And the costs of these services show substantial increase.

Routine improvements, also, do not justify higher rents over March ceilings.

Requests for increases on the basis of contracts long in force and rents below March averages were granted by the administrator.

The plaintiffs ask that the railroad be compelled to restore a switch connecting the plaintiff's property with the railroad right of way which it is alleged was removed on July 12, 1942. The second case is that of the Pennsylvania railroad, lessee of the Western New York and Pennsylvania railway for approval of the construction of a crossing at grade where an industrial siding leading to the produce house of Bordenara and Canforo will cross an unnamed alley north of White street and east of Mill street.

Blood Donors Give Red Cross Navy "E" Award

Pennant Will Be Raised Today In National Capital With Ceremonies

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Army-Navy "E" pennant was raised over Red Cross national headquarters in Washington today at ceremonies recognizing the achievement of the Red Cross blood donor service in collecting blood for the nation's armed forces.

One of the first American servicemen whose lives were saved by blood plasma will pull the flag to the top of the building. He is Samuel Kurtz, torpedoman, 2nd class, U. S., who lost both legs in the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny in October, 1941.

The blood donor service has procured 461,493 pints of blood, 81,493 pints more than the first quota requested by the army and navy. It is now engaged in collecting an additional 2,500,000 pints of blood to be processed into plasma and serum albumin.

Kurtz, who has been recovering from his injuries at the Brooklyn naval hospital, will describe how his life was saved by a dozen blood plasma transfusions, three of which were given aboard a rescue vessel after he and other survivors of the Kearny were picked up.

No plasma was aboard the destroyer at the time of her attack, but a supply was flown to the scene, dropped into the sea, and picked up by rescue ships.

Pennsylvania's Home Front

(By International News Service)

One out of every 25 Pennsylvania workers has shifted his residence because of the war in the greatest mass migration of labor the Keystone state has ever seen. Dislocations are so great, U. S. employment service officials say, that the social, political and economic outlook of the entire commonwealth are being altered. Migrations in particular are overcrowding war centers such as Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Meadville. Conversely ghost villages are being left in many rural sections and in the soft coal and anthracite regions. Authorities are beginning how to study means of offsetting the population changes during the approaching peace.

Another important outgrowth of the war is its startling effect on the so-called "permanent relief" system established to cope with the depression. Work of the State department of public assistance has undergone a swift change. Instead of spending most of its time investigating needy claims, the department has embarked on a large-scale drive to rebuild unemployables for defense jobs.

Pennsylvania O. P. A. officials point out that salesmen are eligible for "C" gasoline ration books only if they sell medical supplies or necessary productive equipment for farms, factories, mines, oil wells, lumber camps, and similar establishments. W. P. B. officials announce that miscellaneous scrap rubber may now be shipped in the same freight cars with tires and tubes. The change is important to small scrap dealers, it was pointed out, because they previously had to assemble a complete carload of miscellaneous rubber before selling and shipping any of it.

In the first drive of its kind in the nation, 300 civilian defense volunteers searched homes in a six-block West Philadelphia area in an all-out scrap metal hunt. Householders agreed to the search after being convinced by defense officials that their own inexpert forays passed by much usable material.

The 7500 workers in the Keystone Ordnance Works in Meadville have received minute man flags for their outstanding record of help in the war effort. A total of 99.5 per cent. of the employees are buying war bonds under the payroll deduction system.
